

Big Topics at Midnight

A Texas Girl Wakes Up to Race, Class, Gender and Herself by Nancy M. Thurston

Unmasking the Racism Still Present In our Assumptions and Actions

Join in an upcoming Race Discussion Table
with Nancy Thurston
Tues, March 5 12:20-2 p.m.
Potter's House Bookstore

Ministry of Money, Journey Into Freedom and Harvest Time, three ministries born from Church of the Savior, shook Nancy Thurston to the core and sent her on a three decades long journey with coming to terms with herself as white-skinned, wealthy woman in a world deeply divided by race, class and gender.

Nancy's newly published book, Big Topics at Midnight: A Texas Girl Wakes Up to Race, Class, Gender and Herself, is memoir, history and a celebration of the power of faith, myth and magic. It's a personal story that calls for social change. Through the lenses of race, class, gender and spirituality, Nancy Thurston excavates history—personal, familial, global—for the sake of cross-generational healing and transformation.

Illustration by Khara Scott-Bey
From Big Topics at Midnight

Some of the key questions we will be in dialogue about:

- What are your current growing (and non growing) edges around racism?
- What assumptions interfere with your ability to build cross-race partnerships?
- How are you continuing to transform racism in yourself and society?

For more information about this event call Kim Montroll, 202-299-1240 ext 23

For more information about Nancy or Big Topics at Midnight www.nancymthurston.com

Discussion Co-Sponsored by Bread of Life Church and Faith & Money Network